Mura was previously involved in schemes with the Emperor against Habaek and his loyalties remain ambiguous. Please help improve this article by adding quotes to reliable sources. Tired of being used for all kinds of things and not wanting to kill Habaek, Nakbin cursed him so that his power would diminish during the day so that it would not be used against the fire gods, although Habaek commented that she could have ordered him to die. Gol-Sangcheon-Nyeo Known as the goddess of fortune, Gol-Sangcheon-Nyeo is the Modern Seoul[1]. References $^{\hat{}}$ $^{\hat{$ 2016). He seems to be loyal to Habaek, particularly after an unspoken incident involving Nakbin in the past. It is especially adverse to Yeo-wa when it appears in the Water Kingdom with the appearance of Nakbin. His devotion of Water, Soah at first confuses him with the God of Water, and later comes to trust him as a confidant and friend, which makes Habaek jealous, even more so from Hoo-ye feel attracted by her. Its extensive lands contain the Divine Garden, where a rare peach grows with fruit that can give a human 18 000 years of life. He is revealed as the Dragà 3 King of the Royal Clan, who is supposed to serve Habaek; However, Tae-eul-jin-in says that he has no real loyalty to anyone other than the one he happens to choose and that he intends 3 see if Habaek is worthy of it. Because of his own affinity with fire and his decision 3 to ally with Shin Nong, he has separated from his wife and son, and Habaek has long believed his father has died. She is the goddess of punishment, torture and illness, although ironically, she also is the goddess of punishment, torture and illness, although ironically, she had beauty. She was the royal girlfriend who was intended to sacrifice Habaek, but she's wealthy family paid to Soah's family for Soah to take the place of Woo-Hui. After her marriage, Nakbin often would speak of the Lily of Araña, who represents a hopeful but tragic destination for her lovers. Because she loved Nakbin, although in reality, Nakbin had committed suicide. She revealed that she was the first person who Habaek knew in the human world and initially thought that she was human. In her youth, she and the emperor was supposed to have loved her, although Suh-Wang-mo fell in love with Dong Wang Kong. To appease the god of water, the most beautiful girl of the village must be sacrificed. When Habaek refuses to kill Mura to his petition, Bi Ryeom does it at the place of her, to fulfill the last petitional for meURA for him. He is in love with Habaek, who referred to her as a "goddess" for kindness; However, because the love of it is not reciprocal, she is resting Soah. Like several characters, she seems to know more than she is willing to tell Soah and she seems to have her own agenda. Finally it is revealed that He is the father of Hoo-Ye and Nakbin and who had previously been close to Habaek's mother before she married Dong Wang Kong. Yu-Hwa the first daughter of Soah and Habaek, who has a strong resemblance to her mother. Mok-Rang (Korean: A A D A young woman whose ability to see the future her dreams woke up when she was a child. In the midst of so many problems, he discovers that he has fallen in love with Mui, without realizing that he is truly Nakbin, but is eventually killed when she survives her usefulness. Before, he served Habaek's mother and has known her since she was a child. Thus, each year a bride is sacrificed so that the reincarnated Nakbin can return to the water country and lift the curse not have a child, and if the curse not have not ha thought Nakbin had returned. After believing that his mother, Yo-hee, rejected him in favor of saving Shin Nong, he befriended Suh-wang-mo because of their mutual solitude. Once Mui's power over water emerged, Shin Nong gave him the title of "Habaek" as the God of Water. However, when Habaek does not seem to remember Soah and Bi Ryeom is finally captured by the Emperor, Bi Ryeom stages an elaborate getaway and takes Soah with him. Despite his strong resemblance to Habaek, his temperament is completely different - Dong Wang Kong is gentle and uneducated and has had few encounters with humans. Mok-rang initially appears as an assistant to the Emperor, under the name Chunhoo, and holds a grudge against Habaek for apparently causing the death of his father and his village companions. When Habaek be killed so that his power would not weaken the Gods of Fire. He tells Habaek that he never intended 3 meet with him in the first place, and he's too ill to fight Hunwon now. The characters of the plot summary of this article can be too long or excessively detailed. The uncertainty of him towards Mui and the fear of trusting him becomes a pair for the emperor of the gods to be used against Habaek. Hwangjae is an old emperor of Chinese god, which means yellow emperor. When Hoo-Ye comes to the Lunar Palace to take Soh, Mok-Rang tries to deceive Dong Wang Kang to see again Suh-Wang-mo. The original series ended in 2014, while the version in English is still in progress. When she finds out that she is Habaek, Woo-Hui admits that she was supposed to be sacrificed to him and makes it clear that she has the intention of making him love her, even when Mui rejects her without a second thought, because she believes That she would do it. They have married me if she had been sacrificed as she pretended. Although the lie, he goes where she is, anyway, to see her one last time.
